An Overview

We believe, and our experience has shown, that by taking the time to listen to the voice of clients, both funders and organizations can build stronger connections with the people they serve, and develop more effective and responsive programming and better client outcomes.

Listen4Good (L4G) supports organizations through the five steps of a high-quality feedback loop.* We also offer guidance and support to funders and grantees as they move through the feedback process.

We encourage organizations and their sponsoring funders meet at least two times during L4G’s 18 month engagement. The goal of the first meeting is to align on the goals of the work. The goal of the second meeting is to inform the important steps of interpreting and responding to feedback.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>MEETING NAME</th>
<th>WHEN TO MEET</th>
<th>MEETING OBJECTIVE(S)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Meeting I - Goal-Setting</td>
<td>During Step 1</td>
<td>• Discuss mutual goals for L4G</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>• Brainstorm potential issues to explore through L4G</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Meeting II - Feedback Debrief &amp;</td>
<td>After organizations interpret client</td>
<td>• Share insights from client feedback (and from the process of gathering feedback</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Response Planning</td>
<td>feedback (post Step 3)*</td>
<td>more generally)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>• Brainstorm potential responses to feedback</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

* 5 STEPS OF A HIGH-QUALITY FEEDBACK LOOP
Note for Funders: When funders have multiple organizations in L4G, they may elect to hold the Goal-Setting Meeting with more than one organization at a time if this is needed to reduce overall workload. However, we strongly recommend that the Feedback Debrief Meeting be limited to one organization at a time to promote a candid discussion of feedback results.

Guiding Principles for Funder-Organization Engagement Around Feedback:

These meetings do more than simply keep funders in the loop. They also facilitate a shared learning mindset, reminding everyone that funders and nonprofits are “in this together.” Further, these meetings give funders the information they need to improve their grantmaking by learning more about the needs and experiences of nonprofit clients. Ideally, funders and nonprofits will also partner together to determine how they can mutually respond to client feedback in the most effective way possible.

However, we know that having open conversations between funders and organization can sometimes be challenging, especially when it comes to discussing critical client feedback results.
LISTENING TOGETHER: A Discussion Guide for Funders and Nonprofits

So, what’s the best overall approach to these meetings?

Every funder-nonprofit relationship is different, but here’s our best advice:

FUNDERS

- Be open – Approach these conversations in a spirit of continuous improvement. These meetings are not about grading nonprofit performance; rather, they are about building an authentic partnership with nonprofits about their feedback experience.

- Be supportive – If nonprofits disclose that they received critical client feedback, don’t be judgmental. Instead, ask yourself: How can you help them respond and improve?

- Be prepared – Be ready to communicate your guardrails to nonprofits – i.e., what you can and can’t do to help them respond to client feedback.

- Be creative – There are many ways to support nonprofits throughout the feedback process (e.g. convening other organizations in L4G, providing referral partners to address gaps identified in client feedback, connecting nonprofits to capacity building or expert resources).

- Be authentic – Recognize and acknowledge the embedded power dynamic in all funder-grantee relationships. Thank nonprofits for taking this feedback journey with you!
So, what’s the best overall approach to these meetings?

Every funder-nonprofit relationship is different, but here’s our best advice:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>NONPROFITS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>• Be transparent – Your funder is your partner on your feedback journey. L4G funders know that receiving critical feedback is just part of the process, and should be willing to partner with you to help learn from the data. Communicate your fears if you have them.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Share what matters – Most funders won’t want or need to see your entire client feedback dataset. Instead, be prepared to share with them a cogent summary of your results.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Focus on solutions – It can be daunting to share critical feedback or things that didn’t go as planned. You can help mitigate this by identifying solutions in advance and by sharing how you plan to improve going forward.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Meeting I – Goal-Setting

MEETING GOALS:

The Goal-Setting Meeting is an opportunity for L4G-participating nonprofits to meet with their sponsoring funder to establish shared goals. During this meeting, both parties (funders and nonprofits) should share overall motivations for participating in L4G, as well as any specific learning goals they have for participation.

This meeting also lays the groundwork for a future Feedback Debrief Meeting, where nonprofits share high-level takeaways from L4G client feedback with their funder.

WHEN TO MEET:

Ideally, this meeting will occur before nonprofits have finalized a survey draft and before their Step 1* call with their feedback coach.

* 5 STEPS OF A HIGH-QUALITY FEEDBACK LOOP
Meeting I – Goal-Setting (continued)

FACILITATION GUIDE:

We recommend that both nonprofits and funders fill out their worksheets (below) in advance of the meeting. If desired, you can share your answers with each other before the meeting. Please note that Q6 on the funder worksheet is intended for internal reflection only.

As both the nonprofit and funder worksheets ask similar questions, you can easily “compare notes” – looking for areas of alignment as well as areas for further discussion – during the meeting.

For quick reference, the questions correspond to each other as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>TOPIC</th>
<th>FUNDER QUESTION #</th>
<th>NONPROFIT QUESTION #</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Overall motivation for participating in L4G</td>
<td>Q1</td>
<td>Q1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Specific goals for organizational learning</td>
<td>Q2</td>
<td>Q2 &amp; Q3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Critical feedback/areas for improvement</td>
<td>Q3</td>
<td>Q4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Establishing shared success metrics</td>
<td>Q4</td>
<td>Q5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Discussing survey design</td>
<td>Q5</td>
<td>Q6</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
1. What was your overall motivation for sponsoring nonprofits for Listen4Good (i.e., what do you hope to get out of doing so)? Why were you interested in sponsoring [nonprofit name] specifically?

___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________

2. What do you hope to learn from [nonprofit name]’s efforts to listen to the people you collectively seek to serve?

___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________

3. Let’s imagine that [nonprofit name] receives client feedback identifying a clear area for improvement. What are some ways you can imagine working together to respond to this feedback?

___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
4. How do you define “success” in Listen4Good? Are there a few goals that you and your sponsored nonprofit can agree on together? (If desired, refer to the Listen4Good Core Competencies document to get a sense of what L4G considers to be the key characteristics and outcomes from “high-quality” feedback loops.)

___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________

5. [OPTIONAL – TIME PERMITTING]: Having reviewed the Listen4Good survey template, are there any topics you would want to add to the survey given your vantage point (knowing that survey design is ultimately up to nonprofits)?

___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________

6. [INTERNAL REFLECTION ONLY]: Think back to previous experiences (if any) when nonprofits shared difficult feedback or disappointing results with you. How did you manage the conversation? What was effective? What could you have done better in light of existing power dynamics? How will this experience inform your approach to hearing about client feedback in Listen4Good?

___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
1. What was your overall motivation for participating in Listen4Good?
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________

2. Are there specific competencies or organizational “muscles” you hope to build through the Listen4Good process (i.e., designing survey questions, analyzing data, etc.)? (If desired, refer to the Listen4Good Core Competencies document to get a sense of what L4G considers to be the key characteristics and outcomes from “high-quality” feedback loops.)
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________

3. What do you hope to learn from your clients by surveying them? Are there specific aspects of client experience that you hope the survey can shed light on (i.e., unmet needs, possible “pain points” like wait times or scheduling, feelings of exclusion by marginalized groups)?
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
4. Let’s imagine that you receive client feedback identifying a clear area for improvement. What are some ways you can imagine your funder to be a helpful partner as you respond to this feedback? While funding is obviously always appreciated, are there also non-monetary ways they could assist you?
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________

5. How do you define “success” in Listen4Good? Are there a few success metrics that you and your funder can agree on together?
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________

6. [OPTIONAL - TIME PERMITTING]: Having reviewed the Listen4Good survey template, what are some topics you would want to pursue through your custom questions?
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
Meeting II – Feedback Debrief & Response Planning

MEETING GOALS:

The Feedback Debrief is an opportunity for L4G-participating organizations to share high-level client feedback takeaways with their funder, and to start to collectively brainstorm responses to that feedback.

It is also an opportunity for funders to reflect on how they themselves seek feedback and what implications client feedback broadly may have on the foundation’s goals and strategy, project prioritization, or portfolio management efforts.

As emphasized throughout this guide, this meeting is not an occasion for the funder to “grade” or otherwise evaluate nonprofits based on their feedback results. In extreme cases, we believe that doing so may lead to “gaming” of feedback results, especially if the power dynamic between funder and nonprofit is not appropriately addressed. Conversations should be in the spirit of continuous improvement.

WHEN TO MEET:

If possible, we recommend meeting after nonprofits have analyzed their client feedback data, but before major responses have been strategized (that is, after the conclusion of Step 3 but before the conclusion of Step 4*).
Meeting II – Feedback Debrief & Response Planning (continued)

FACILITATION GUIDE:

Before the Feedback Debrief meeting, nonprofits should create a summary of feedback results to share with their funder. This summary should be shared with funders as early as possible, so that funders can review and digest it prior to the meeting.

Note for Nonprofits: There are three resources for crafting your feedback summary available under Step 4 on the L4G web app: 1) The L4G Report Builder, which creates a presentation pulling some of your data directly from SurveyMonkey; 2) A PowerPoint template, for those who desire a greater ability to customize, and 3) Examples of other L4G nonprofits’ feedback summaries, to inspire those who want to create a report from scratch.

In addition, we recommend that both funders and nonprofits fill out their respective worksheets (below) in advance of the meeting. If desired, you may share your answers with each other before the meeting.

As with the Goal-Setting Meeting, both worksheets have similar questions to allow for easy compare/contrast:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>TOPIC</th>
<th>FUNDER QUESTION #</th>
<th>NONPROFIT QUESTION #</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Issues raised by feedback summary</td>
<td>Q1 &amp; Q2</td>
<td>Q1 &amp; Q2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Responding to feedback</td>
<td>Q3 &amp; Q4</td>
<td>Q3 &amp; Q4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reflecting on the process</td>
<td>Q5</td>
<td>Q5</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
1. As you reflect on the client feedback received, is there anything that surprises you?

___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________

2. Is there anything else you want to know about the feedback itself (i.e. further analysis to be done)?

___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________

3. What implications do these feedback findings raise for you as a funder?

___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
4. Are there any ways in which you can help [nonprofit name] respond to client feedback (i.e. by providing referrals or introductions, identifying capacity development opportunities, or directly funding needed improvements)?

___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________

5. Look back to the shared goals you both agreed to during your Goal-Setting Meeting. Based on what you know now, do you feel that these goals were accomplished? Is there anything you would do differently in future feedback cycles?

___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
1. As you reflect on the client feedback received, is there anything that surprises you?

___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________

2. Is there anything else you want to know about the feedback itself (i.e. further analysis to be done)?

___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________

3. If clients have identified areas for improvement, how do you plan to respond (and are there any barriers to responding effectively)?

___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
4. How can your funder help you respond to feedback (i.e. by providing referrals or introductions, identifying capacity development opportunities, or directly funding needed improvements)?
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________

5. Look back to the success metrics you laid out during your Goal-Setting Meeting. Based on what you know now, do you feel that these metrics were accomplished? Is there anything you would do differently in the next feedback round?
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________